HERODOTUS uses some scraps of ancient legend which introduce, but do not lead logically as causes into his history of the recent Persian War.

484 BC

C550 BC  $\rightarrow$  480 BC - 479 BC

Died
in late 420's BC.

Born 484 BC (tradition)

HERODOTUS wrote history. His theme was the enmity that developed between East and West from the time of Croesus of Lydia (c 550 BC) to the Persian war of 480-479 BC.

Herodotus' "History" contains valuable and lively discussions of the customs, geography, and history of Mediterranean peoples, particularly the Egyptians.

its account of the Persian war, including the battle of Marathon and Xerxes I's defeat by the Greeks - is a detailed narrative that remains the basis of modern reconstruction Herodotus observed that only the gods enjoy continuous happiness
He was a Persian, born in HALICARNASSUS in Asia Minor, not long after 480 BC
